

The Legacy of Living in Lake Country.

It's said that we live on forever through the impact we have in the lives of others, and I can't think of anything that has more impact on us than where we live, especially when you live in Lake Country.

Lake Country residents like you have had a tremendous impact on five generations of my family. This community has been the backdrop of our lives. It's our home in every sense of the word. More than that, it's our legacy. I bet you feel the same way. This place, Lake Country, is one we want to share with those we care about because those who live here become the torchbearers for future generations.

You see, Lake Country residents are like the ropes of the Royal Navy: Special, Strong and Valuable. Their ropes were easily identifiable because of one red thread woven throughout. To see the red thread meant you belonged to the royal fleet of ships, and your ties were vital. It kept all that was meaningful tethered together.

You are the red thread of Lake Country.

I am that red thread of Lake Country.

Together, we hold the legacy and traditions of this special place. We're the ties that bind this generation to the next, and it's how Lake Country will live on forever.

That's legacy.
